ORDINANCE ON THE SUBJECT AMENDED AND PASSED.

Judge Powers Addresses the Council On Behalf of Druggists, to Show Need For a New Ordinance For the Sale of Liquor For Medicinal Purposes.

Mayor Clark gave to the city council erroneously in October, 1892, by the last evening a demonstration of his willingness to have the fire department reorganized in accordance with plans proposed Saturday evening to the committee on fire and police by Chief De-vine. By the execution of the initial plan four promotions will be made in plan four promotions will be made in the department, and the vacancies thus created will probably be filled by men who are now serving on probation. The firemen who are affected by the mayor's message of appointment are Edward McCarthy, promoted from captain to assistant chief: Charles E. Wood, from lieutenant to captain, and Michael W. Earl and James W. Love, who are promoted from the position of pipemen to lieutenants. As soon as the message was read, Councilman Callister moved to sussend the rules and proceed to was read, conformate Camber moved to suspend the rules and proceed to concur in the mayor's action. Robertson and Margetts opposed the motion, and insisted upon reference to the committee on fire and police. The movement committee on fire and police. WATERWORKS PAYROLL.

OIL AND FOOD INSPECTION ORDI NANCE.

The bill for an ordinance regulating the inspection and sale of illuminating oils came up for consideration and final action. The main features of the old ordinance are incorporated in the new measure. In consideration of the fact that the duties of oil inspector, to which office Henry P. Richards was recently anisoluted are extremely light. ecently appointed, are extremely light, Barnes proposed an amendment to the effect that the oil inspector shall also perform the duties of assistant samitary and food inspector. The amendment was adopted, as was also one offered by Callister defining the duties of the by Callister defining the duties of the official in the inspection of food. Allen endeavored to have the oil inspector attached to the waterworks department to turn water off and on in cases of need, instead of requiring him to assist in the health department, but his effort was unavailing. The salary of $75 a month was allowed to stand, the inspection fees collected to be turned into the city treasury. As amended, the ordinance was passed.

or without a physician's prescription. A consistent ordinance would protect the city, and enable the subcrement of the law. Druggists can't always sell liquor on prescription, any more than as to quinine, because the physician's fee in many cases would cost more than fee in many cases would cost more than the medicine. The wholesale liquor li-cease of $1,000 per year would be an un-just prohibition, the judge submitted, judge Powers added that it was partly on the suggestion of Assistant City Atfor the suggestion of Assistant City At-torney Young that he had made his plea, so that the entire council could comprehend the question.

A committee of druggists, Messrs, Druehl, O'Connor and Nelden, were present, the latter of whom stated that the average yearly sales of liquor at drug stores did not exceed $300, and it would be unjust to exact a prohibitive license, because liquor must be kept in stock as medicine. The association of druggiets, Mr. Nelden added, would agree to help enforce such an ordinance.

Heart Disease the Cause of His Death

The waterworks committee reported the result of the official inspection of City creek, made on Monday, and recommended the expenditure of $500 for retimbering and renairing the tunnels which tap numerous water courses and springs, and for otherwise improving the quality and increasing the quantity of water this season. The desired sum was supropriated.

DUPLICATE WATER CERTIFICATES.

On recommendation of the committee on waterworks, duplicate water certificates were ordered issued to Thomas Martin and George E. the senste on the conference commit-tee report was only the Turple amend-ment for the recognition of the Cuban insurgents, and consequently those who had voted against the conference had only recorded themselves in favor of the Turple amendment.

Mr. Bacon and Mr. Speoner fell into a technical discussion as to what was implied in a vote for a conference re-port, in which many senators partici-pated.

Mr. Bacon deciared that the resolu-tions would have become a law if the Turne amendment had prevailed, the only difference being that in that event the lasurgent government would have been recognized.

To this proposition many Republic-ans shouted "No, no," in unison, but none attempted at that time to ex-plain the reasons for their dissent.

All this had been in the way of interruption during Mr. Cockrell's speech. He resumed at this point his discussion of the president's pelicy, which, he contended, from the president's own language, meant intervention in the shape of "heatile constraint" upon both parties to the Cuban war, and upon the Cubans as much as upon the Spaniards. He contended that this policy only looked to a pacification of the island of Cuba and not to the expulsion of the Spaniards or the establishment of a republic in Cuba. Mr. Cockrell replied that when the question finally came before the senate it was on the particular matter as to whether the recognition of independence should be incorporated in the resolution. That amendment, Mr. Cockrell contended, was the only point at issue on the final vote.
